

2010 round table series

a monthly discussion group for professionals in the field of aging social workers, nurses, guardians, home care, day and senior services, long term and residential care staff, mental health providers

This group is an opportunity to reach beyond your agency for an interactive and meaningful dialogue. Learning from others and helping to develop a community of professionals in the field of aging will add a new dimension to your practice. Goals for this group are:

- to stimulate you to consider your practice in new ways
- to keep current with the latest professional literature
- to create links between current literature and clinical practice

Participants will receive articles to read prior to each monthly Round Table which will provide the framework for the group discussion.

Barbara Green, MSW, is in private practice in care for older adults. She has expertise in caregiving for families managing the changes brought on by dementia. She has broad experience in program development and management in community and residential settings. She is director of education for the Washington Adult Day Services Association.

Professional development and mentoring are essential if we are to maintain excellence in care. I am dedicated to working with a variety of professionals who work with elders in our communities.
